Extracts from "Hiawatha."

[Critics may differ as they will on the merits of Longfellow's last poem, as an artistic production; but every one who reads the English language, will find in these extracts the force of true poetry. The first forms a sort of preface to Hiawatha.]

Ye who love the hums of Nature,
Love the sunshine of the meadow,
Love the shadow of the forest,
Love the wind among the branches,
And the rain-shower and the snow-storm,
And the rushing of great rivers,
Through their palisades of pine-trees,
And the thunder in the mountains,
Whose unnumbered echoes
Flap like eagles, in their cries;—
Listen to these wild traditions,
To this song of Hiawatha!

Ye who love a nation's legends,
Love the ballads of a people,
That like voices from afar off
Call to us to pause and listen,
Speak in tones so plain and childlike
Scarcely can the ear distinguish
Whether they are sung or spoken;—
Listen to this Indian Legend,
To this song of Hiawatha!

Ye whose hearts are fresh and simple,
Who have faith in God and Nature,
Who believe, that in all ages
Every human heart is human,
That in even savage bosoms
There are longings, yearnings, strivings
For the good they comprehend not,
That the feeble hands and helpless,
Groping blindly in the darkness,
Touch God's right hand in that darkness
And are lifted up and strengthened;—
Listen to this simple story,
To this song of Hiawatha!

Ye who sometimes, in your rambles
Through the green lanes of the country,
Where the tangled brambles-bushes
Hang their tufts of crimson berries
Over stone walls gray with mosses,
Pause by some neglected grave-yard,
For a while to muse and ponder
On a half-effaced inscription,
Written with little skill of verse-craft,
Homely phrases, but each letter
Full of hope and yet of heart-break,
Full of all the tender pathos
Of the Here and the Hereafter;—
Stay and read this rude inscription,
Read this song of Hiawatha!

Winter and Famine.
O, the long and dreary winter!
O, the cold and cruel winter!
Ever thicker, thicker, thicker,
Froze the ice on lake and river;
Ever deeper, deeper, deeper,
Fell the snow over the landscape,
Fell the covering snow, and drifted
Through the forest, round the village.

Hardly from his buried wigwam
Could the hunter force a passage;
With his mittens and his snow shoes
Valiantly walked he through the forest,
Sought for bird or beast and found none,
Saw no track of deer or rabbit,
In the snow he left no footprints,
In the ghastly, gleaming forest
Fell, and could not rise from weakness,
Perished there from cold and hunger.

O, the famine and the fever!
O, the wasting of the famine!
O, the wasting of the fever!
O, the wasting of the children!
O, the anguish of the women!
All the earth was sick and famished;
Hungry was the air around them,
And the hungry stars in heaven
Like the eyes of wolves glared at them!

LOOKING AHEAD.—A very handsome bride was observed to be in deep reflection on the wedding day. One of her bridesmaids asked her the subject of her meditation. "I was thinking," she replied, "which of my old beaux I should marry in case I should become a widow."

VARIETY.

Why did Job always sleep cold? Because he had miserable comforters.

Better be the head of yeomanry than the tail of the gentry.

"The eleventh commandment," says the Times, "is this: 'Thou shalt not be found out.'"

A friend that you buy with presents, will be bought from you.

He is rich whose income exceeds his expenses, and he is poor whose expenses exceed his income.

Those who believe that money can do every thing are frequently prepared to do everything for money.

There are two reasons why we don't trust a man: one because we don't know him, and the other because we do.

A printer out west, whose first son happened to be a very short, fat little fellow, named him Brevier Full faced Jones.

A dutchman describes New Yorkers as "berry fine peeples" who "go about der streets scheating each other, and dey call that piziness."

FASHIONS FOR THE SEASON.—A New York paper, speaking of the report on gentlemen's fashions, says: "There is not much change in gentlemen's pantaloons this month."

A gentleman asked a friend in a knowing manner—"Pray, sir, did you ever see a cat fish?" "No, sir," was the response, "but I have seen a rope walk." Wonder if he ever saw a horse fly.

Always adhere strictly to truth; but while you express what is true, express it in a pleasing manner. Truth is the picture; the manner is the frame which displays it to advantage.

POLITICAL.—The son of a friend of ours, whose head is running on politics, in consequence of the agitation in relation to that subject innocently wishes to know whether Dr. Kane tried to get to the Pole to deposit his vote.

The following is a true copy of a sign upon an academy for teaching in one of the Western States: "Freeman and Huggs, School Teachers. Freeman teaches the boys, and Huggs the girls."

It is the little troubles that wear the heart out. It is easier to throw a bomb-shell a mile than a feather, even with artillery. Forty little debts of one dollar each, will cause you more trouble and dunning than one big one of a thousand.

A witness in a liquor case at Manchester, N. S., gave the following testimony: "Salsoda is ice and water, and some steam."

"Don't know whether it is intoxicating or not—it makes one feel good—feels like lift easier."

"My brethren," said Swift, in a sermon, "there are three sorts of pride: of birth, of riches, and of talents. I shall not now speak of the latter, none of you being liable to that abominable vice."

"I give and bequeath my beloved brother Zack one thousand dollars."

"Why, you are not worth one half that sum in the world," interrupted the magistrate.

"Well, no matter if I ain't," replied the other, "it's my will that brother Zack should have the sum and may work and get it if he has a mind to."

LIFE.—For every one life has some blessing—some cup that is not mixed with bitterness. At every heart there is some fount of pure waters, and all men at some time or other taste their sweetness. Who is he that has not found in his path of life, some fragrant rosebush, scenting all the air with its sweet perfume.

"No GIRL BUT THAT GIRL."—A letter passed through the Hereford (England) Postoffice lately with the following singular address:—"For that girl I don't know her name they call 'the galoper,' and lives somewhere in Rowsy Lane, Hereford, Herefordshire. Shure don't give this to any girl but that girl." The letter reached its destination, the fair one for whom it was intended being known by this sobriquet by the police.

MODEST ASSURANCE.—A good looking young fellow stopped at one of the Major's Hall's hotel, Cahaba, Alabama, and ordered his baggage down to the house, and went down himself without paying his bill.—Said the Major: "Sir, you must not leave without paying your bill. I can't afford to hire servants, buy provisions, and board people for nothing."

"You can't?" "No."

"Well, then, why in creation don't you sell out your tavern to some one who can?"
